WHEELING, NOVEMBER 7, 1893.

The Contest in Ohio.

The eyes of the country are on Ohio to-day. Foreign producers, too, understand the importance of the election in that state and await with keen interest decisive reports from the field of battle. Democrats themselves do not look for the election of their ticket. They have bent their energies to keep down McKinley's majority and to gather in a majority of the legislature.

Republicans fear nothing but overconfidence in their party. So much has been said within and without the state about an immense majority for McKinley that there is danger of the old men in particular remaining at home, men who would make any sacrifice to get to the polls if they thought their party and its great leader in danger. The Republican managers and Governor McKinley himself have sought to guard against this danger, with what success to-day will determine.

Whatever the result may be, the campaign has been a contest between party principles, not altogether a square fight, for the Democrats have tried to make voters believe that their party will not carry out in letter and spirit the tariff declaration of its Chicago platform. Republicans have forced the fighting on the tariff line, sought to present the situation as it is, done their best to get the people to think.

When men feel they are likely to think. The unemployed in Ohio and those who are employed on short time with the near future all uncertain, are believed to have been doing all the thinking that is necessary to give the state to the Republicans by a handsome majority.

Governor McKinley has made a splendid campaign. He has been on the stump continuously, speaking two and three times a day, and no more forceful speeches were ever delivered in any state. He has done his full duty. He will triumph and with him the cause he represents. The majority is the only open question.

Now, then, Ohio protectionists, let us see what is in you.

Recent Votes in Ohio.

In 1888 Harrison carried Ohio over Cleveland by 19,599 in a total vote of $41,941, the Prohibitionists polling 24,356 and the Labor party 1,880.

In 1889 Campbell defeated Foraker by 10,872, the total poll being 775,545. The Prohibitionists increased their vote to 26,504. The Labor vote fell to 1,042.

In 1891 the pendulum swung strong in the Republican direction. Twenty thousand more votes were cast than in 1889, swelling the total to 795,635 and giving McKinley the handsome majority of 21,511 over Campbell. The Prohibition vote fell to 20,190. The People's party, which had taken the place of the Labor party, had 23,472 votes.

1892 came very near being a Democratic year. One Democratic elector received 404,115 votes and was elected. The Democrat who came next to him had 401,503. Harrison polled 405,187 and had a plurality over Cleveland of 1,072, a very close shave. The total vote was 850,299. The Prohibitionists polled 26,012, the People's party 14,850. The present legislature is Republican in both branches, having a Republican majority of forty-eight on joint ballot.

This year there are four state tickets in the field as usual, Republican, Democratic, Prohibition and Populist.

Ten Russell who is running for governor of Massachusetts says he is willing to take his oath that he is a free trader. Of course he is running on the Democratic ticket.

The Point of Interest in New York. To-day will show whether the Hill-Sheehan-Murphy-Tammany machine is stronger than all the decent people in the state of New York. Maynard, the machine's nominee, is opposed by the best men in the Democratic party, and lots of them, and by the strongest Democratic and all the independent newspapers in the state. He is opposed because he stole election returns. The charge is not denied, but Maynard and his friends seek to justify the theft.

If everything goes well to-day we can all smother that turkey in the sauce of intense gratification.

Chicago will say to-day whether she prefers the honest and fearless Judge Gray, who has done his duty nobly by that city and stood up straight for justice, or Governor Altgeld, who has crawled before the Anarchists, disgraced his state and his country, and is making a personal war on Judge Gray. This is one of the most interesting of the questions to be determined to-day at the ballot box.

The Ohio campaign ran full blast up to a late hour last night and will break out afresh in a new place this morning. The Campbells are going this year.

Wheeling's Glass Industry. Wheeling will not lose its valuable glass industry without an effort to retain it. This much was shown by last night's chamber of commerce meeting, which was largely attended by men who know the value of the industry to the city and mean business.

It was developed at the meeting that the INTELLIGENCER's estimate of wages paid out in this city in a year by the glass houses was too conservative. The pay rolls of the two concerns now closed foot up $414,000 a year. If it were proposed to establish in Wheeling a new industry that would disburse this much money in the community there would be a mighty effort to anchor it here.

The old is better than something new and untried. Wheeling understands the glass business, has been successful in it and has made a name which is of itself a valuable stock in trade—valuable if we make glass, valueless if the old glass houses be dismantled and no new ones take their place. The sentiment of last night's meeting was, strongly in favor of continuing in the glass business.

If the old plants can be bought at a fair price they may be taken. If they cannot be the idea is to build new ones. There was some leaning to new concerns in any event, but this phase of the matter was left open to await the report of the committee, which will see what can be done with the United States Glass Company for the purchase of the old plants. Old plants or new plants, Wheeling wants to hold on to her glass industry.

In 1892 Harrison carried Massachusetts by 23,101. At the same election the personal popularity of Governor Russell, Democrat, carried him through by 2,534. It is another Russell who is running this time, cousin to the present governor. Russell is an avowed free trader and the Republicans have made a straight tariff fight against him.

Iowa Republicans expect to knock out Governor Boies this year. He has been elected twice—in 1889 by 6,523, in 1891 by 8,216. Harrison carried Iowa in 1892 by 23,729 in a total poll of 443,159. Jackson, Republican nominee for governor, has made an aggressive campaign, assisted by first-class stumping talent.

In Virginia the Democrats fear that the pushing Populists have the turn on some of the election machinery. This is inexpressibly sad if true. What is the Democratic party without its election machinery?

Foot ball is getting a grip that bids fair to leave base ball in second place. The base ball artists may have to take to foot ball and long hair if they wish to maintain their hold on the American people.

West Virginia isn't doing any voting this year, but there are some thousands of West Virginians who are doing a deal of wishing for the success of protection. It's their bread and butter.

If New York chooses Maynard, the corrupt judge, in place of an honest man the rest of the country should cut that state's acquaintance. Maynard is a convicted scoundrel of the first class.

Get a move on you there, over-the-river Republicans—get in your solid vote for protection and beat up the bush for your neighbors. This should be a great day in the Buckeye State.

In Washington they regard Senator Sherman, not Senator Voorhees, as the real leader of the repeat forces in the senate. Isn't this rather rough on the Hoosier statesman?

We want to hear big things from Belmont county this time. No other county has greater reason to raise a lusty shout in behalf of protection.

There have been battles of note in which the havoc was less than at Santander. No words can add to the awful horror of that calamity.

BREAKFAST BUDGET.

One of the most interesting exhibits of the electrical building at the World's Fair was a patent doorway, which opens automatically as one approaches it and closes again after the entrance has been made. This is accomplished by means of a mat on either side of the door, which starts the electrical machinery as one steps on it.

Japanese auction is a most solemn affair. The public do not call out their bids, but write their names, together with the amount they are willing to pay, on a slip of paper, and put it in a box. These are looked through, and the article awarded to the person who has made the biggest offer.

Ninety per cent of the energy in coal is lost in converting it into power. It goes off in heat through the chimneys, and is perceived in any room where there is a furnace and boiler. A means of saving this waste will vastly lighten the cost of everything manufactured by electric or steam power.

A farmer's taxes in Turkey are classified thus: (1) One-tenth of all crops and fruits; (2) 4 per cent of the renting value of houses and lands; (3) 5 per cent on every transfer; (4) an annual tax of 33 pence on every sheep and 21 pence on every goat. The taxes are rigorously collected.

Gladwin county, Mich., boasts of having the largest frame barn in the world. It is 156 feet long, 50 feet wide. The structure is three stories high, and is 75 feet from the base to the apex of the roof.

The cotton receipts at all the ports were the heaviest on Tuesday in the history of the country—88,472 bales. The next largest receipts for any one day were 84,943 bales, Tuesday, Oct. 31, 1892.

The most extensive and celebrated salt mine in the world is at Wieliczka, nine miles from Cracow, in Galicia, a province of Austria-Hungary. It has been worked continuously for 900 years. The mass of salt is calculated to be 500 miles long, 20 miles broad and 1,200 feet deep.

The collecting of postage stamps has brought into existence a professional stamp collector, who, for a small fee dexterously repairs mutilated stamps. His specialty is restoring the margin to envelope stamps that have been cut to shape, and have thus lost much of their philatelic value.

From the known properties of aluminum to resist the action of salt water, it is being used as an alloy, twelve parts to eighty-eight of other metals, for bolts for boats. It is this shape it forms a combination with copper, which is of a bright yellow color, and is very tough.

Orange culture in the United States has outgrown consumption. It is estimated that the coming crop will exceed the demand by at least 1,000,000 boxes. Of the whole production Florida is expected to furnish 4,500,000 boxes and California 2,500,000 boxes.

PERSONAL POINTS.

The earl of Ava, who has been hunting in the west for nearly a year, is in New York on his way home. He is an Irishman, a son of the marquis of Dufferin. Some three or four years ago Burma was annexed to the domains of Queen Victoria. The capital of Burma was a very old town by the name of Ava. At this time Lord Dufferin was viceroy of India, and in honor of the annexation he was made Marquis of Dufferin and of Ava.

Temporarily Commissioned.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 6.—President Cleveland issued temporary commissions to several persons whose nominations failed of confirmation by the senate. This will enable them to perform the duties of their offices until they can be again sent to the senate, when that body reconvenes in December. Among them are the following:

Robert Preston, director of the mint; Peter C. Doyle, collector of customs, Buffalo Creek, N. Y.; George S. Woods, collector of customs, Champlain, N. Y.; John J. Kennedy, appraiser of merchandise, Buffalo Creek, N. Y.; Walter H. Bunn, appraiser of merchandise, New York City; John W. A. Strickland, assistant appraiser of merchandise, New York City; Valentine Fleckenstein, collector of internal revenue, Twenty-eighth district, New York.

Reappointed.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—The following reappointments of those left unconfirmed by the senate were made by the President to-day: John B. Riley, of New York, to be consul general of the United States at Ottawa, Canada; to be consul of the United States: Newton B. Ashby, of Iowa, at Dublin, Ireland; H. Clay Armstrong, jr., of Alabama, at Grenoble, France; Benjamin Lenthier, of Massachusetts, at Sherbrooke, Que.

AN UNHAPPY FAMILY.

Strange Relations Between the House and Senate—An Unpleasant Affair.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 6.—The extra session of Congress adjourned, having a rather disagreeable feeling existing between the senate and house. As a usual thing every effort is made by the members of each body to have all differences so adjusted as to leave no cause for strained relations. This is necessary in order not to have a perpetual disagreement and deadlock between the houses. The senate feels that the refusal of the house to extend the time for adjournment on Friday for an hour and a half in order that it might act upon the nominations still before it was an act of discourtesy. The house considers that the request came too late for it to do so under its rules, although the speaker and Mr. Catchings, member of the committee on rules, did all that was possible under the circumstances. It is held, however, that the house is responsible for its rules and the action of its members, and if the rules allowed any member to draw the whole house into an act of discourtesy toward the senate, the house as a body is responsible.

The real difference between the senate and the house is over the proposition to pay the clerks of the senate during the months of October and November, 1890. The senate claims the right to regulate its own internal affairs and expenditures, and accords the same right to the house. It is cited that when the sergeant-at-arms left with $75,000 belonging to members, the money being that which was the personal property of the members, and not actually government funds, that the house proposed and the senate, without objection, agreed to an appropriation for the entire sum.

When the house appropriated and proposed to pay its clerks and clerks to members, the senate assented, and there was no difficulty on that score. The senate claims that it contracted the debt of 1890 and feels in honor bound to pay it, and the temper of the senators at the time of adjournment was that this will be paid before there are any appropriations put through this Congress.

The condition of the joint resolution which caused the uproar Friday is a matter of some doubt. Many members believe that, being on the speaker's table, it is subject to a motion to concur in the senate amendment when the house meets in December. There is an opinion, however, that it is subject to a point of order, as it does not apply even if the work specified should be performed by the clerks to members, as the resolution is to pay those employed by the house during the "coming recess." The recess will be over, and it is claimed, the resolution will apply to nothing. It is understood that the money for the clerks will be placed upon the first deficiency bill that makes its appearance from the house.

THE SILVER QUESTION.

May Be Given a Best for a Time—Mr. Voorhees's Intentions.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 6.—Senator Harris, of Tennessee, who is third in order of precedence of the members of the committee on finance, and who was one of the foremost of the southern champions of silver in the recent debate in the senate, is not inclined to believe that the silver question will be seriously revived in Congress early in the approaching regular session. Discussing the question with an Associated Press reporter, he said there would be other important subjects which would demand attention and would probably take precedence of the silver question for the present.

"That subject has," he said, "had such a thorough overhauling of late, and the result has been so opposite to what the silver men desired that I fancy that they will be disposed to allow the subject to remain quiet for the present. Of course," he added, "there will be many silver bills introduced and undoubtedly the subject will be discussed in committee if not in the senate and house themselves."

Senator Harris replying to the question concerning Mr. Voorhees's intentions said: "I am sure that I cannot say what Mr. Voorhees will do, but I should not be surprised at all if he should introduce a free coinage bill as is reported. Such an act would not be inconsistent. I have said on the floor of the senate that Mr. Voorhees is as strong a believer in silver as I am and in making that statement I put on record my honest convictions."

"A CHEMICAL success and medical triumph," so speaks an eminent physician in reference to Ayer's Cherry Pectoral; and the eulogy was none too strong. No other medicine is so safe and efficacious in all diseases of the throat and lungs.

A GREAT HOTEL MAN.

Has Been a Hotel Proprietor for Thirty-three Years.

And He is Full of Anecdotes and Reminiscences.

Now Eighty-three Years Old and Pays His Respects to Our Readers.

There are few hotel proprietors so popular everywhere, and who can give such experiences as the well-known Richard W. Adams, who at present resides at 78 Myrtle street, Boston, Mass. For thirty-three years he has been identified with our best hotels, having been proprietor of the Pavilion Hotel, Waltham, N. H., the American Hotel, Worcester, and the Addison Hotel, Middleboro.

He is a most approachable and affable gentleman, and he gave the writer many reminiscences of his active hotel life.

"You see I am eighty-three years old and have seen long service in hotel life," he said in the course of conversation, "and while I am perfectly well and strong now, I was formerly a great sufferer."

"Why, for more than twenty years I suffered from the greatest debility. I was weak, tired, languid, broken down in health from over-work, care and anxiety. I was unable to sleep, was extremely nervous, and in fact was a complete physical wreck."

"I was induced to take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, hearing it everywhere recommended so highly, and I found it to possess the most wonderful reviving power and influence over me.

"It has built up my whole system and has never failed to strengthen me and increase my vitality and vigor to a remarkable extent."

"It is certainly a most valuable and powerful medicine and I cannot speak highly enough in its praise. I heartily recommend it to all."

Certainly no one who wishes to regain health, strength and vigor, should delay using this remarkable remedy. Never mind if you have consulted doctors and tried other medicines until you are well nigh discouraged. Get Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and your restoration to health is assured. It will make you feel better right away, and a cure is certain. The medicine is purely vegetable and harmless.

It is the discovery and prescription of the famous Dr. Greene, of 35 W. Fourteenth street, New York, the successful specialist in curing all forms of nervous and chronic disease. The doctor can be consulted free by all, personally or by letter.
